The following is the setup procedure for remote Internet Explorer viewing. The demo store is a convenience store in Nevada.

The Remote Viewing Setup is for the purposes of demonstration for Authorized Thin Air Technology representative. Unauthorized viewing of the site is strictly prohibited without written consent. The information in this document is subject to change without notice.

ActiveX Control Download

An ActiveX control must be loaded first to make the viewing possible. Not all Windows can allow Unsigned ActiveX control to be downloaded. The following procedure is to setup for browser to download the ActiveX control.

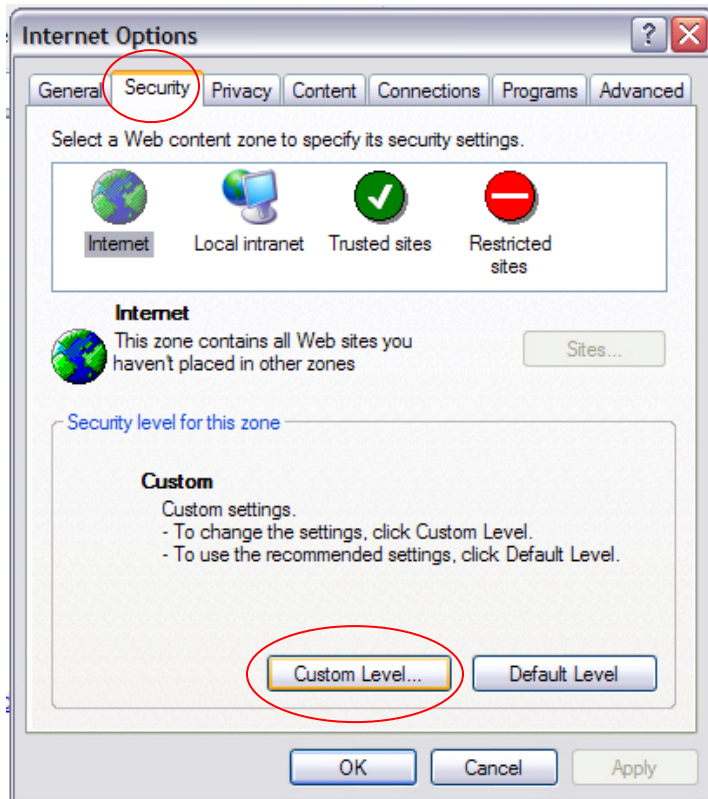

Start up an Internet Explorer window:

Click on the "Tools" option on the top left corner:

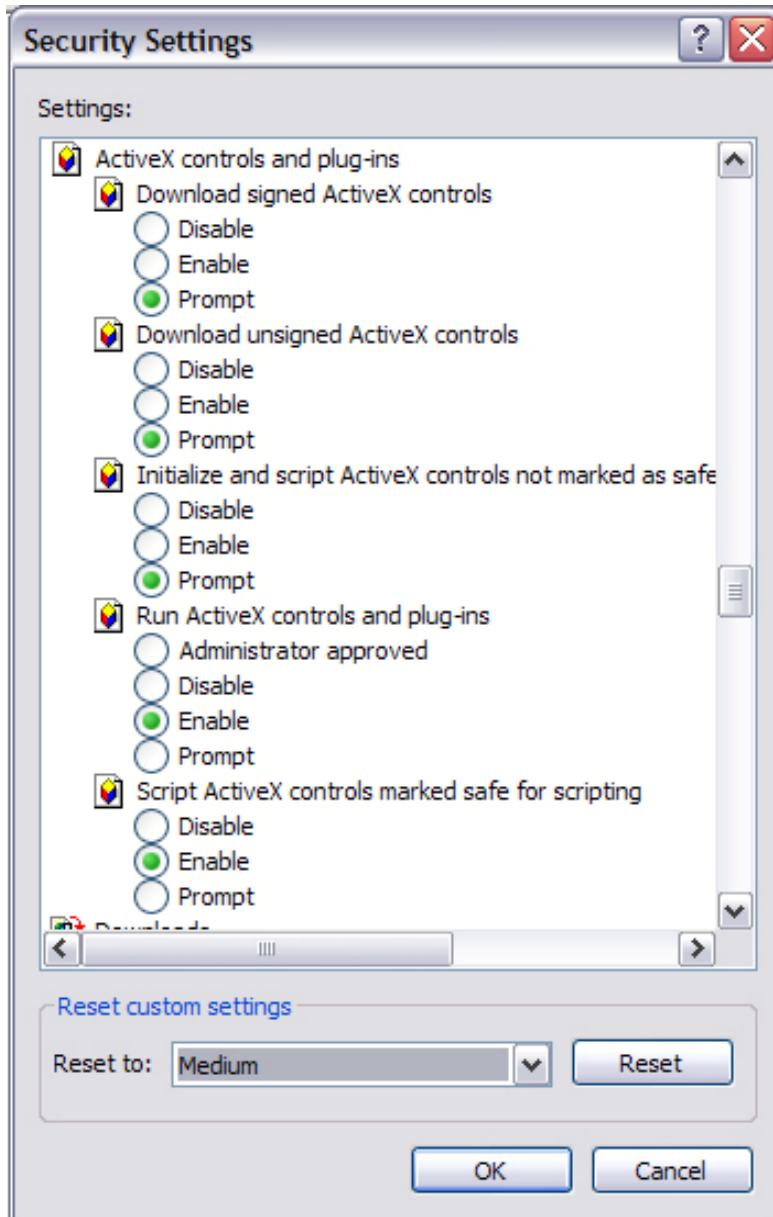

Click on "Internet Options..."

Choose the “Security Tab” and then click on “Custom Level...”

Verify that your settings are the same as below.

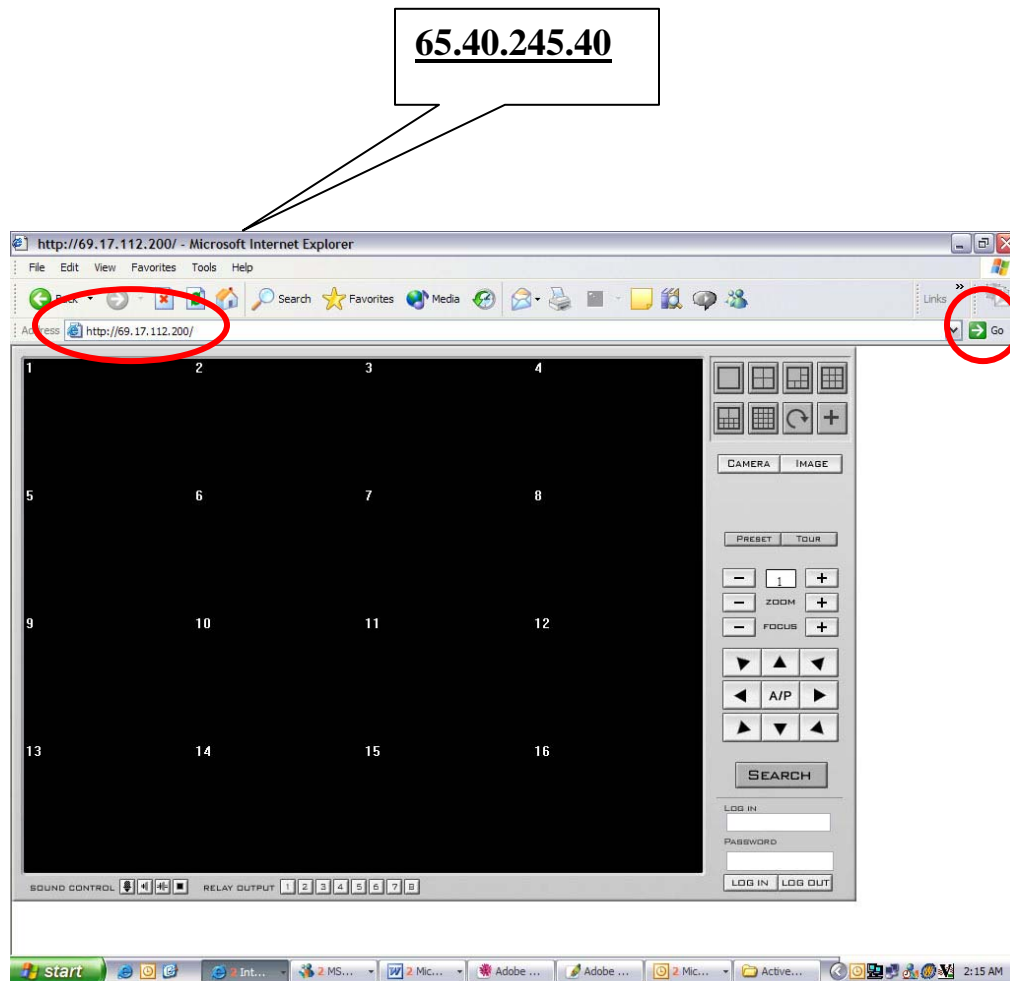

When you are done, click on "OK"

Then click on "OK" again on the next screen until you are back to your Internet Explorer page.

Close all Internet Explorer Windows. This will reset your setting. Open a new Internet Explorer window. The new setting will now be effective.

Type in the IP address into the address field and press “→Go”.

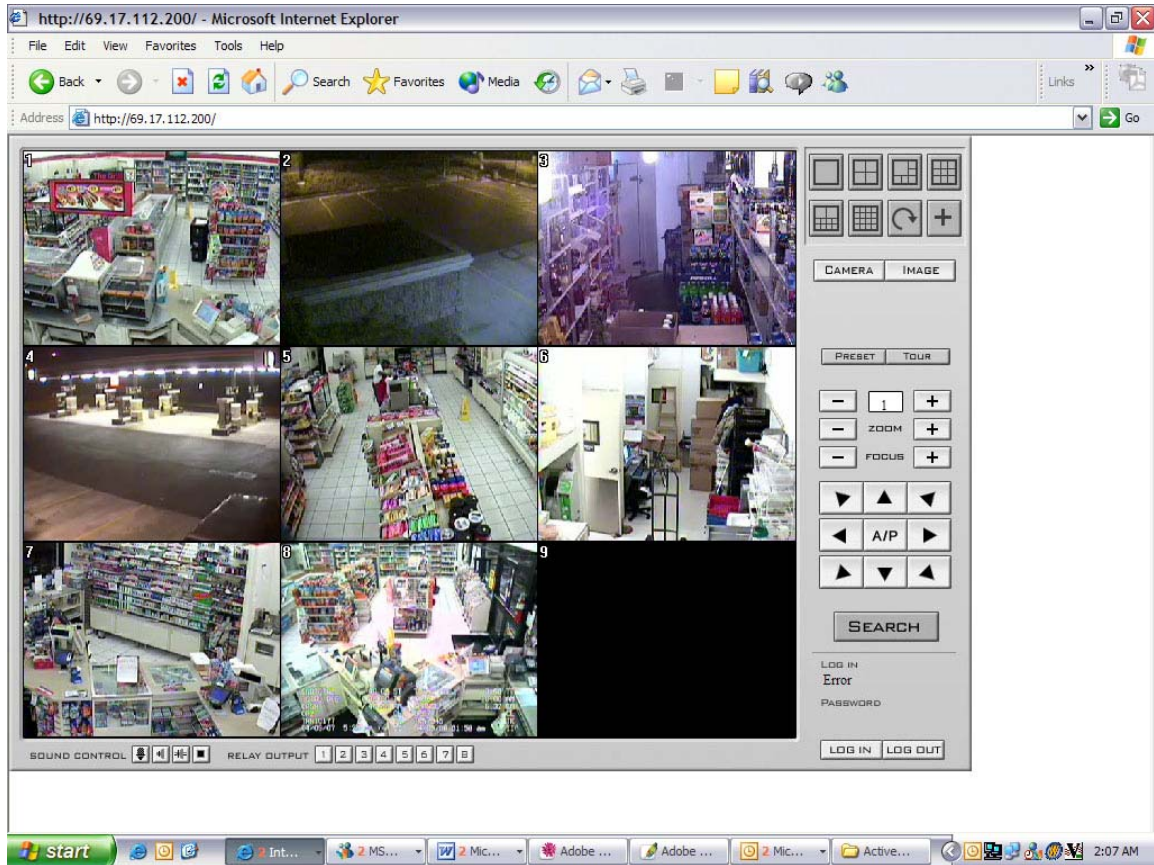

The site should load up like above.

An additional ActiveX control will be prompted to be downloaded. Press “OK” to allow the download and installation of this ActiveX control.

When the site is correctly loaded, the log in and password fields on the bottom right will become white. These fields will let you enter in the login information. Refresh (F5) your screen if it does not load up.

Enter in the LOG IN name and PASSWORD and hit the “LOG IN” button. The video images should then start to appear.

Closing Internet Explorer

Once viewing of the Demo site is finished, click on the “X” in the top right corner of your internet explorer window or go to the “File” on the top left corner and choose “Close”.

If the site is not being view, it should always be closed to avoid any unnecessary waste of bandwidth.
